

Day trip to Buckingham Palace

Monday 6th September 2010

We depart our pick up point at 0845, and with a short comfort stop enroute, we arrive in London with some free time before travelling onto the Palace for our afternoon visit. Buckingham Palace is still very much a working Royal residence, and is the centre piece to Britain's constitutional Monarchy. It has been the official residence for Britain's sovereigns since 1837, and today is the administrative hub of the our Monarchy. It boasts some 775 rooms, and is furnished with priceless works of art that form part of the Royal Collection, which is considered to be one of the major art collections in the World. Our visit allows us the opportunity to view the 19 state rooms, which form the heart of the palace and also hold many of its price-less treasures. At the end of your visit you will also have the chance to glimpse the famous lake from the south side of the garden.

We arrive back at our drop off point around 19.00 via a short comfort stop enroute.
